(3)

On attmepting to remove the brain it is found that the left temporal lobe is firmly adherent to the meninges at the point already indicated. Slight pressure upon the temporal lobe causes complete rupture, and a quantity of pus escapes. It was impossible to remove the brain without destroying a considerable extent of the left temporal lobe.

At the base ofthe brain the pia is slightly cloudy.

All the ventricles contain a normal amount of fluid.

No lesions other than the abscess in the left temporal lobe canld be discovered. On removing the meninges from the base of the skull, there is found a depressed fracture roughly ~~perinoeum~~ pyramidal in shape, having a squared base and slightly elevated apex. Base measures approximately 2 c.m. in diameter, the elevation about 5 m.m. External to this is a considerable amount of fibrous tissue through which it is possible to gain access to the sinus which opens externally.

ANATOMICAL DIAGNOSIS -

PROCEEDINGS of a * Medical Board of Inquiry assembled at VANCOUVER GENERAL MILITARY ANNEX

on the 8th day of April, 1918,

by order of O.C. Vancouver Military Hospitals, for the purpose of inquiring into the cause of the sudden death of #760015 Pte Chipman, Abraham, 7th Battalion.

PRESIDENT.
F. P. PATTERSON, Major, C.A.M.C.

A.R.ROBERTSON, Capt. C.A.M.C.
FREDERICK BRODIE, Capt. C.A.M.C.
MEMBERS.

The Board having assembled pursuant to order, proceed to take the evidence of Major A.S.Monro, who, being sworn, states that Private Chipman was a patient in Ward Seven, V.G.H.M.A. for the past few months, suffering from slight G.S.W. in left temporal maxillary joint, which was still discharging slightly at time of death. He had also shell shock symptoms. He had been steadily improving, but slowly, and was in usual spirits and condition on Appil 4th, when he suddenly developed a rise in temperature and appeared drowsy and slept a good deal that day, but had no pain. The following day condition remained the same. No serious symptoms being in evidence. The following morning - the 6th - he seemed better, the temperature having dropped to 99 deg. He sat up in bed and answered all questions in a normal manner and said he had no pain or distress.

I did not see him again before his death, which occurred at 8 P.M.

VANCOUVER GENERAL HOSPITAL
PATHOLOGICAL LABORATORY

The body is that of a well developed, well nourished male measuring 160 c.m. in length. Pupils 6 m.m. and equal. There is a small sinus midway between the left eye and the ear which ax apparently has been discharging a small quantity of pus. It is just above the edge of the malar bone. Post mortem lividity marked, post mortem rigidity present.

ABDOMINAL CAVITY - There is a small amount of fat in the abdominal wall and a very limited quantity in the omentum. There were no adhesions or fluid in the abdominal cavity.

PLEURAL CAVITIES - Both cavities contain a small amount of blood stained fluid, apparently blood which has been slightly haemolysed. There are numerous firm adhesions posteriorly on both sides which are broken down with difficulty.

PERICARDIAL CAVITY - Contains about 3 oz of blood stained fluid.

HEART - 315 grams - Muscle is very soft and flabby and the cavities contain fluid blood.
A.V. 6.8 c.m. - M.V. 11.5 c.m. - T.V. 11 c.m. - P.V. 6.5 c.m. - L.V. 1.5 c.m. - R.V. .3 c.m.
The valves are normal in consistency. There are patches of atheroma of the aorta.

LUNGS - Both lungs shOow considerable quantity of post mortem congestion in the dependent portions. There are no scars at either apex. Posteriorly in both lungs there is a thickening of the pleura, from which adhesions stretch to the parietal pleura. On the right side three lobes are bound together by fibrous adhesions.

GASTRO INTESTINAL TRACT - Normal.
ADRENALS - Normal.
LIVER - 1460 grams - Paler than normal except at the anterior edge, which is discolored green with post mortem stain. Bile duct is patent and the gall bladder contains dark fluid bile.

SPLEEN - 135 grams - Organ is very soft. Cut section is deep chocolate brown. The markings are distinct.

KIDNEY - 260 grams. Capsule strips readily. There is no alteration in the relative size of the cortex and medulla. No gross lesions can be seen.

BRAIN - On removing the calvarium, the inner table especially of the occipital bone, is stained with blood. The meninges are congested and in the region of the left temporal lobe are adherent to the great wing of the splenoid. On attempting to remove the brain it is found that the left temporal lobe is firmly adherent to the meninges at the point alreafy indicated. Slight pressure upon the temporal libe causes complete rupture, and a quantity of pus escapes. It was impossible to remove the brain without destroying a considerable extent of the left temporal lobe. At the base of the brain the pia is slightly cloudy. All ventricles contain a normal amount of fluid. No lesions other than the abscess in the left temporal lobe could be discovered. On removing the meninges from the base of the skull, there is found a depressed fracture roughly pyramidal in shape, having a square base and slightly elevated apex. Base measures approximately 2 c.m. in diameter, the elevation about 5 m.m. External to this is a considerable amount of fibrous tissue through which it is possible to gain access to the sinus which opens externally.

ANATOMICAL DIAGNOSIS:

Old depressed fracture of the great wing of the splenoid on the left side
Old sinus opening above the malar bone half way between eye and ear on le side.

(Signed) R. H. Mullin

Capt. T.E.P.Gocher, C.A.M.C., being sworn, states that on April 6th, at 7:55 P.M. he was called to see Private Chipman and arrived at his bedside at 8 P.M. and found him unconecious with a heavy drawn breathing, about 4 per minute. The pulse was full regular and 60 per. Pupils were equally dilated and re-acted very slowly to light. Color was slightly cyanosed. At 8:03 P.M. his breathing ceased and pulse ceased 4 minutes later. No convulsions were seen.

(Signed)

T. E. P. GOCHER,
Capt. C.A.M.C.

THE BOARD HAVING HEARD THE SWORN EVIDENCE of Major A. S. Monro, and Capt. T.E.P. Gocher find:

That there was no reason to believe that anything serious was impending and that every care and attention had been given the patient, and that he died from natural causes, as shown in the Post Mortem report.
