Nursing Sister
J.L. ALPORT.

I examined this patient yesterday and found no definite signs of tubercular disease, but the symptoms were so suspicious that I took an X-Ray photograph.

This shews marked affection of the lower lobes of both lungs, particularly the right, but it is probable that this is not tubercle, but chronic bronchial and peribronchial inflammation, due to persistent catarrh. I do not consider that she is fit to return to duty at the expiration of her present leave, but now that the weather is better there is good prospect that a short time longer under good conditions will clear up the trouble.

Kindly forward r eport to the D.M.S.
