Splints: Sectional band & wire metal splints made and parts assembled together as seen in the mouth. This controlled the parts on the body of the bone. Then the lower jaw was wired to the upper, thus securing immobility of the fracture at the angle of the jaw.

Condition February 5, 1916: The fracture at the angle all well, so the lower jaw is not wired to the upper. The sectional band & wire splint is holding the parts very well. There is still a slight suppuration and sinus in the right lower 1st molar region.
