For conspicuous gallantry at Hooze, during the action on June 6th, 1916. During the intense bombardment, four of his platoon were completely buried by H.E. This N.C.O. immediately went to their assistance and dug them out at great personal risk to himself. In going to them he had to cross an open stretch of ground, as the trenches in that part had been completely flattened out by H.E. There is no doubt that these four men would have been suffocated had he not rendered prompt assistance as they were semi-conscious when unearthed. Later during the day when the enemy were advancing in lines of sections, this N.C.O.'s Platoon

Commander became a casualty.

The N.C.O. immediately took charge and showed great ability and displayed extraordinary coolness. (A.F.W. 3121)

BAR TO MILITARY MEDAL.

For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty . At Courcelette on September 15th 1916. He was in charge of a party detailed to dig a support trench in front of a old German front line. Regardless of the heavy bombardment of the enemy, and, although he was fully exposed to rifle and machine gun fire during the whole time, he continued to encourage his men to further efforts.

The success of this work was largely due to his splendid courage and personal example. A.F.W.3121.
