Aug.22. Oxalates now absent from urine, has had some long spells of absence from pain but it returns again.

24.8.19 Free of pain for 24 hours, but it returned acutely in the night and associated with bladder irritation, frequency of desire for micturition snd very little passed. Urinalysis failed to show cause for this. No oxalates but wtill red and white cells and casts. Another X Ray failed to show calculus in kidney, ureter or bladder.

26.8.19 Another bout of pain of an acute nature last night, but at a lower level, below iliac and shooting to groin, but some pain also in kidney area.

27.8.19 Some bladder irritation last night but no kidney or ureter pain. Feeling much better. ~~Pain xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx~~ I am still inclined to think there may be a small oxalate calculus which is now about the ureteric orifice. Possibly however it is simply a ureteritic resulting from the attack of Oxaluria.
