SPECTACLES:

WHEN TO WEAR THEM.

We cannot overrate the value of spectacles when properly adjusted for they preserve to us one of the most valuable and exalted of our senses, and enable us to pursue our avocations, whether of pleasure or duty, with ease and comfort; so that when we find that the eyesight is beginning to fall in any particular, we should lose no time in consulting the optician, in order to receive that assistance which it is in his power to give.

The first symptom of the change in the eye inducing long sight is, that we are obliged to remove every object to a greater distance from the eye before we can see it distinctly. Thus in perusing a newspaper or any small print, we are sometimes obliged to hold it nearly at arms length before distinct vision is produced; whereas in healthy vision we should have been able to bring about the same result at a distance of twelve inches from the eye. Although we may see the type quite clearly under these circumstances, it is a system that is highly detrimental to the eyesight, and should on no account be persevered in, as it will ultimately increase the failure of the eye, and oblige the optician to use much stronger glasses before a remedy can be applied than if assistance had been sought at an earlier stage of the disorder; whereas it not unfrequently happens, that those who take to spectacles in time are after a while enabled to lay them aside and to see objects with the unassisted eye as clearly as before their use.

Another sign of the decline of sight is when we are obliged to hold the candle between the book or paper and the eye before perfect distinctness can be attained; this causes a contraction of the pupil necessary to our perfect appreciation of objects. Now nothing can be more injurious to the sight than this habit, for the strain thrown on the eye by so much light in such close proximity will eventually dull the perception of the visual organs.

Immediately an individual discovers that the above applies to his own sight, he should without delay seek the assistance of glasses, and if care be taken in the selection, he will be entirely relieved from the inconvenience. Many persons find from the above defect that it is more difficult to read at night than in daytime; such persons ought to be provided with two pairs of spectacles, the one to be used by candle light, being rather stronger in power than that in use in the daytime.

One unmistakable indication that we require spectacles is, that on reading a book or newspaper the letters appear after a short time confused and run one into the other, appearing double and treble, and convey the idea of the eye having a veil or mist before it. The eyes from this cause become so fatigued, that it is found necessary to be continually closing the lids, and to relieve them by looking frequently at different objects, or by stimulating them by friction. If we neglect the means we have at our disposal to correct this distressing state of vision, we shall assuredly suffer for it at no very distant period, and eventually be obliged to use glasses of a much greater power than if we had taken to them in time, to the permanent injury of the sight, and in some instances to its partial loss.

We have just received direct from France, a large addition to our stock; it is now complete in almost every quality. We shall spare no pains to meet the wants of our patrons in this line. In the selection of Spectacles, it requires the greatest care and attention, and should not be performed hurriedly nor without due consideration of the circumstances of the case. The old plan of trying on a number of glasses is most injurious, as the eye becoming fatigued refuses to perform its functions properly, so that eventually we find that after testing the powers of a quantity of different spectacles, we not unfrequently decide upon a sight that is neither suitable to the case under treatment, not comfortable to the wearer, when used quietly at home. We are enabled by knowledge of the business and practice to obviate this injurious practice.—We can generally select Specks, that will suit at once, after asking a few questions, and in no case (unless the eye is diseased,) do we require to have parties try them on sufficiently to affect the eye.

Our Stock comprises in part as follows:—

IN CONVEX FOR LONG SIGHT.

Fine Gold with light and heavy frames, best English and French glasses.

Silver frames, with best double convex glasses.

Blue Steel frames of best make, light and strong with double convex pebbles.

ELECTRO GOODS.

A Word to those who use Electro Forks and Spoons.

Perhaps there is no goods, used to the same extent, that there is so much deception practiced in selling, as in Electro Plated goods, and at the same time it is in the power of any person to tell the quality or the thickness of the Silver at the first sight by simply understanding the marks.

In the first place, there are very few makers that we have confidence in their goods, being as marked. We have had an experience of twenty years, and we give decided preference to Wm. Hutton & Son; their mark is W. H. & S., with a letter on the back of the Spoon to indicate the thickness of the Silver, which runs as follows:—A., B., C. and D.; A. being the heaviest plate, and D. the lightest; the "C." quality has been chiefly sold in Canada, until lately there has not been anything better kept in stock; A. never being imported unless ordered. We have sold Hutton's "C." quality, which we know have been in constant use, for the last six years—the silver has not worn through in any part; therefore we can with all confidence, recommend their goods to our customers. B's. and A's. will of course wear much longer, being thicker plate. Parties having the "A." Fork or Spoon of this make, and take the same care of them that they would of silver, they would last a life time; they only cost one fifth the price, and if they should wear through in eighteen or twenty years, they can be replated for a trifle, and then they would be quite new again. We import the above goods direct from the makers in Sheffield, therefore we are enabled to compete with any establishment in Canada.

Our Stock comprises, namely:—In A., B. and C. Forks, Spoons, Butter-knives, Fish Slices, &c.; Tea Setts in great variety; Coffee Urns; Water Kettles; Salvers; Cake and Fruit Baskets; Egg Stands; Cruet Stands; Sterling Silver Spoons.

We guarantee all of our Watches to be first rate timekeepers, and in any case where one should fail to come up to that standard, satisfaction will be given in another, or the money returned.

Piano - Forte Manufactory,

KING STREET, HAMILTON.

JOHN KNOTT,

(FROM COLLARD & COLLARD, ENGLAND,)

Respectfully informs the Citizens of Hamilton and the surrounding country that after upwards of twenty years' experience in London, he is enabled to manufacture the most approved Pianofortes, with all the latest improvements, at a considerable less cost than those imported into Canada, and for durability, power, brilliancy of tone, and elasticity of touch, not to be surpassed. All instruments manufactured are warranted of the best workmanship, a good sound serviceable Piano, and kept in tune within the city limits one year, FREE OF CHARGE. All instruments full compass; a six octave Piano for the performance of the compositions of the modern composers is useless. Pianofortes tuned and thoroughly repaired, and old ones taken in exchange.

The following testimonial of Messrs. Collard & Collard, (the most extensive manufacturers in the world,) J. K. feels a pleasure in showing, and he trusts is a sufficient guarantee to the public to secure a good Piano.
