INTRODUCTORY.

In placing before the public this issue of the City of London and Middlesex County Directory, for 1883, we would say that no pains have been spared in obtaining such information as would make it as complete and reliable as possible, in many instances making repeated calls; but as some refuse to give their names, or particulars, we do not hold ourselves responsible for omissions or incorrectness which thus arise.

The many changes which occur between the time of taking the names and the completion of the work have been carefully noted, and such as could not be inserted in the Alphabetical Directory have been placed in the Addenda.

In establishing our claim on the support of the public, it is sufficient to say that the work is printed in a new, attractive and condensed form, giving fuller and more correct information in every department than any previous issue, and we trust it will so commend itself to the large business population of London that they will give us a much larger support in future.

We take this opportunity of thanking all those who have in any way contributed to the successful issue of the work.
